My grandma whom we all called Nanny was a solid, first-generation, Italian immigrant. She came to this country with her family on a tiny ship during World War I when she was only 8 years old. During the trip she survived stormy seas, little food, and an attack by a German U-boat. After getting here, her large family worked hard to build a new life in America. They never had much money but were rich in love.

One day, when I was about 5 or 6 years old, my parents and brothers went on a trip. It was just me and Nanny in the house for the weekend. Nanny seemed so happy to be taking care of me all by herself. She made me a special breakfast that first morning. However, all I could do was to complain about how the food was not how Mom always made it. Nanny quietly put down the plate and went into the living room. I followed a minute later and saw that she had tears in her eyes. It was the first time I had ever seen my strong and proud grandmother cry and I was the one who had caused it.

I walked over to Nanny, climbed on her lap, and for the first time in my short life I did something else too. I apologized without being told to and asked Nanny to forgive me. She smiled, rubbed my head, and told me I was a good boy even though I didn' t feel like one then.

That memory just like my Nanny' s love will stay in my heart forever. It is a sign of both strength and wisdom. Asking for forgiveness helps us to learn, to grow, and to love.

24. The boy complained to Nanny that the food _____.
- A. was just to his parents' taste B. was served a bit later than usual
C. was prepared in a special way D. wasn't cooked the way his mom did
25. When seeing Nanny crying in the living room, the author felt _____.
- A. ashamed B. surprised C. shocked D. annoyed
26. The author mainly wants to tell us that _____.
- A. grandparents are more tolerant than their grandchildren
B. hardships can make children more indifferent
C. forgiveness can be beneficial to people asking for it
D. family ties can sometimes be misused
27. What kind of person is Nanny in author' s eyes?
- A. Joyous and jealous. B. Kind and sensitive.
C. Strong-willed and wise. D. Hardworking and careful.

Oh my God, the robots are taking over! We' re doomed! Doomed! Now that I' ve gotten that out of my system, it' s become clear that while we may or may not be doomed, the robots are taking over. The latest example is the government' s new guidelines for self-driving cars.

Tesla, Google and Uber are already testing driverless cars in cities across America. Uber chief executive Travis Kalanick is among those predicting that by 2021, self-driving cars will play a big part in urban settings.

Nearly 40,000 people died last year in this nation in automobile-related accidents, and we believe driverless cars can save tens of thousands of lives annually.

Makes sense. Robot drivers are less likely to get drunk, drive without a license, text while driving or feel agitated at the scene of a pileup. On the other hand, I wonder how these highly sensitive cars will react, with walkers constantly dashing into the street. Will they jam on the brakes every 10 seconds?

But there' s a bigger picture. Not only are robots replacing humans behind the wheel, but behind the work desk, in warehouses, senior homes, you name it. Robots aren' t just taking over in the workplace.

The question is, where can't a robot function better than a human? How about writing songs? A robot can go through every combination of notes in record time and come up with a pleasing melody. The lyrics might be a different story. Is a Grammy-winning song co-written by Hank Human and R-3071 in our future?

Finally, it's only a matter of time until we have robot politicians and presidential candidates. Why not? They can be programmed to be experts in world and domestic affairs and come up with the best solutions without corruption and bad humors.

Actually, it's too bad such technology isn't available in 2016. Pretty sure the robot would win in a landslide.

28. The underlined word "agitated" is closest in meaning "_____".

A. Tired B. Anxious C. Careful D. Cautious

29. What doubt does the writer have about self-driving cars?

A. How passengers behave in it. B. How robot drivers get the license.

C. How they avoid crashing into other car. D. How they respond to walkers on a busy street.

30. The last questions asked in the sixth paragraph reflects the writer's _____.

A. confidence in robots, winning Grammy Awards
B. eagerness to listen to songs written by robots
C. doubt about robots' ability to write songs
D. curiosity about the future Grammy songs

31. What is the author's attitude towards the coming robot?

A. Disgusted. B. Indifferent. C. Doubtful. D. Optimistic.

Half off usually unaffordable products? Only $49.99 for that $100.00 dinner? That's the magic of Groupon, but for some small business owners the "great business" offered by Groupon can be equal to the kiss of death. How could that occur?

The math of Groupon seems simple at a glance, but upon further inspection the numbers don't add up when it comes to smaller businesses. A Groupon typically offers a 50% discount on a product or service; then the remaining profit is divided between Groupon and the small business. While Groupon has already received the profit in advance, the merchant is left waiting for their cut. Those worrying numbers are assuming the price cut is 50/50, which, in some cases, is being generous.

When you break it down to numbers, a Groupon deal seems disastrous, but it's not only the numbers small business owners have to worry about. The point of Groupon deals is to attract new and hopefully long term customers. Yet, does this actually happen? The majority of consumers buying the Groupon are there for the bargain and don't return after using their Groupon. CFHS Junior Angelita Pope stated, "I love the deals offered by Groupon! They can really save you so much money." However, she went on to say that she hadn't returned once to any of the businesses after using her Groupon.

For some small businesses, the pressure lies with the responses of their loyal customers, who watch as new faces get the same product or service for half the price that they have been paying for years. When you break it down, Groupon indicates that the business offering the deal is not only willing to be flexible with their price, but also that their product or service isn't worth the price they're charging for. When combining these factors, it's no wonder loyal customers are put off by the idea of their favorite shop offering Groupons.

Now I by no means say Groupons have bad effects on all businesses; however the storm of Groupon is actually a disaster for a small business.

32. What is good about Groupon?

- A. It brings small business owners more profit.
- B. It helps add up the numbers.
- C. It can improve the quality of the product.
- D. It can offer a large discount.

33. CFHS Junior Angelita Pope's statement suggests that _____.

- A. Groupon may not bring customers back
- B. people like using Groupon in the same business
- C. the purpose of Groupon is to promote business
- D. small business owners needn't worry about deals

34. What's the pressure of some small businesses according to the passage?

- A. Their products may not be as good as as before.
- B. They may not be offered the “great business” by Groupon.
- C. Their regular customers may feel cheated and won’ t trust them.
- D. They will be closed down by the government.

35. What could be the best title for the text?

- A. A new business trend—Groupon dealing
- B. The effects of Groupon on small businesses
- C. The development of a Groupon company
- D. A fantastic shopping experience—Groupon

One cold night, I was growing sick of my life in San Francisco. There I was walking home around one o' clock in the morning after a 41 practice at the theatre. As I walked down the 45 streets under the tall buildings, I felt very small and cold, so I began 46 both to keep warm and to keep away from any possible robbers. Very few people were still out 47 a few homeless people under blankets.
