Dear Liu Kai,

The first thing you must remember is that people in England drive on the left side of the road! In England, there are several ways to cross a busy road. It is safer to cross using a subway, a footbridge. If you cannot find any of these crossings, choose a very straight place on the road where you can see cars coming from left and right. You can also look for a pelican crossing（自控人行道）. At the pelican crossing, you will see a black-and-white pole（杆）. There is a button on the pole. Press the button to tell the cars that you want to cross the road. At first, you will see a red man in the light on the pole. This means you cannot cross the road. Then the red man will change into a green man. This means you can walk across the road safely.

If you take the bus in England, you might have to pay the bus driver as you get on the bus. Only buses in the city centre in London have a conductor (售票员). If you take a taxi, make sure you have enough money because it is expensive. London taxis are black and very comfortable. The drivers take a special exam about London before they become taxi drivers. So, they always know where they are going.

The London Underground is the biggest underground train system in the world, so make sure you get on the right train. Many people make mistakes. They think they are going to the city centre, but they end up at the airport!

See you soon.

William

25. Which isn't mentioned (提及) as a safer way to cross a busy road in England? _____

- A. A footbridge.
- B. A zebra crossing.
- C. A subway.
- D. A pelican crossing.

26. When can you walk across the road safely? _____

- A. When you see a black-and-white pole.
- B. When you press the button on the pole.
- C. When you see a red man in the light on the pole.
- D. When the red man in the light on the pole changes into a green man.

27. Which one is proper (恰当的) if you get on the bus in England? _____

- A. You should pay the bus driver at once.
- B. You should pay the conductor right away.
- C. You should tell the bus driver at which stop you will get off the bus.
- D. You should wait to pay for your bus ticket when you want to get off the bus.

C

We all think that babies are cute and we all know that they need someone to take care of them.

What else do you know about them? You will be surprised to know babies have some amazing abilities (能力) that you can only dream of. Here are some amazing things you may want to know.

First of all, babies can sleep anytime and anywhere. Sometimes, they even can sleep when they are having their lunch. Sometimes, you may find them sleeping on the cold floor in your bathroom.

Second, babies have two times more taste buds (味蕾) than us, so they can feel some small changes in taste even before their birth.

Third, babies can dive and swim without learning till around 6 months old. They can swim with their mouth and eyes open under the water!

Fourth, babies can eat as much as they want without getting fat. They have something called "brown fat" and it can burn calories very quickly. They have a lot of it, too. It even makes up about 5% of a baby's weight.

Babies can also see things clearly. Believe it or not! They can tell the differences (差异) between two faces of monkeys. But we lose this ability little by little when we grow old. Now, we sometimes can't even tell the differences between two western persons.

Are you feeling a little jealous (嫉妒的) of babies right now? You are not alone. Even scientists are so jealous of babies that they are trying to find a way to get these abilities into adults. However, these special abilities are for babies only.

28. What can babies do according to the article? _____

- A. They can smell things well.
- B. They can hear things clearly.
- C. They can eat a lot without getting fat.
- D. They can swim without learning after 6 months old.

29. Which of the following is TRUE? _____

- A. Babies lose these amazing abilities when they grow up.
- B. Babies can't sleep when they are having lunch or it is cold.
- C. Adults can swim well without learning when they grow up.
- D. Adults can also have the abilities with the help of scientists.

30. Where may the article come from? _____

- A. A story book.
- B. A science book.
- C. A travel book.
- D. A cooking book.

D

Traditional museums didn't see it as a threat (威胁) when the Museum of Ice Cream' opened in New York in 2016. After all, as a "pop-up museum" (快闪博物馆), it only stayed open there for a month.

However, as more of these pop-up museums started showing up over the next two years, they seemed to become more and more popular. And the latest member to join this list is the Museum of Pizza, set to open in New York this October for two weeks.

It seems that museums are no longer just places to "see" art. In traditional museums, people can only stand far away from works of art, but in these pop-up museums people try more interactive activities. For example, the Museum of ice Cream is now open in the US city of Miami. There, visitors can jump into a pool of plastic sprinkles (糖屑). And at the Museum of Pizza, people can lie on a "pizza beach" to enjoy a "wave of cheese".

These wonderful pop-up museums let visitors get away from their real life—even just for a while and enter a fantasy world.

Everyone enjoys feeling close to art, so we hope pop-up museums will not only keep popping up, but also stay open.

31. What can you do in traditional museums? _____

A. Eat nice ice creams.

B. Lie on a "pizza beach".

C. Enjoy a "wave of cheese"

D. Watch the works of art from a polite distance (距离).

32. What does the word "interactive" in Paragraph 3 mean? _____

A. 互动的

B. 短暂的

C. 静止的

D. 真实的

33. According to the last paragraph, how does the writer feel about pop-up museums? _____

A. Pop-up museums are not good for everyone.

B. He doesn't think pop-up museums need to stay open.

C. Pop-up museums will not become more and more popular.

D. He hopes pop-up museums will be open for a longer time.
