Look at your classmates.There must be someone who has a lot in common with you.

First，smile at your classmates.Do this as often as you can，until your classmates become used to your smile and smile in return.

Next，talk to your classmates.Do this between classes or during your lunch break.You may find it easier to start by talking to people when they are alone.

Perhaps you could ask a classmate about your studies.They are likely to respond in a very positive way.People like to feel important and helpful.
