How to Write a Travel Journal

If you want to write a travel journal, here are some useful tips for you.

Get into the habit of writing in your travel journal every day. When on a busy journey it is easy to forget to write. You will regret this later when priceless memories^① are forgotten. You may promise yourself that you will go back and write about your experiences^② later, but that almost never happens. Buy a travel journal that can be used for a long time. It doesn't have to be long, just on a regular^③ basis.

Use your “down time” for your travel journal. Surprisingly, there is a lot of sitting around while travelling. You can always write down a few lines in your travel journal when you are on trains, waiting for planes, or waiting in line.

Date your diary in your travel journal. In your heading write down the day, where you are, who you are with, maybe even the weather and what you eat that day. These are the first details^④ people usually forget. Years later when you read your journal you will know exactly what you were doing on that day. No matter how much time changes, the memories will come rushing back.

Focus on^⑤ writing about how you feel. Listing facts and figures is fine but that isn't the reason why you travelled. A long journey is a time for self reflection^⑥. Being in a foreign environment^⑦ is a special experience. Make a list of places you want to go next. Memories of these feelings die down quickly with time. Writing about those experiences while the memories are fresh is necessary.
