30.听力原文： As more and more people lose their jobs, now it is perhaps the time to consider the experience of unemployment. What are the first feelings? Well, losing a job, or not being able to find one, almost always brings unwelcome changes. (29) If you've lost a job, the first feeling is often one of shock. As well as the loss of income, many people find the whole routine of their life is shattered. their contact with other people reduced, their ambitions halted and their identity as a worker removed.

At first there may be good feelings too. A new and better job is just around the corner. It's nice to be able to lie in bed in the morning or spend more time with the children; have more time to think. But, unless a better job does turn up, the chances are the days start getting longer. and time becomes harder to fill. (31) Many people pass through periods of difficulty in sleeping and eating. They feel irritable and depressed, often isolated and lonely.

Despite all these problems though, unemployment can be a chance for a fresh start. You can discover that (30) it provides an opportunity to sort out or rethink what you want from life and how best you can get it. (31) You can use the time to plan how to field a new job, learn a new skill, develop your hobbies or see if you can run your own business.

38.Many people believe they are suppose to drink eight glasses of water a day, or about 【S1】 _____ two liters. What?Because that is what they have been told all their life.But a new report 【S2】 _____

offers some different advice. Experts say people should obey their bodies; they should drink as much water as they feel like drink. 【S3】 _____ get about two-point-seven liters of water day. Men should get about three-point-seven liters. S4】 _____

But wait--in each case, that is more than eight glasses.
There is an important difference. The report does not tell people how many glasses of water to drink. In fact, the experts say it may be possible to know how many glasses S5】 _____ are needed to meet these guidelines. This is because the daily water requirement can include the water content in foods.

People need to drink more water when they are physically active. The same is true of those live in hot climates. Depending on heat and activity, people could need two times S6】 _____

so much water as others do. S7】 _____

All this, however, does not answer one question. No one seems sure why people have the idea that good health require eight glasses of water daily. S8】 _____

It may have started with a misunderstanding. In nineteen-forty-five, the National Academy of Sciences published some guidelines. Its Food and Nutrition Board said a good number of water for most adults was two-point-five liters daily. This was based on S9】 _____ an average of one milliliter for each calorie of food eat. But that was only part of what S10】 _____ the board said. It also said that most of this amount is contained in prepared foods.

2.Harmfulness of Fake Commodities Like most people I Welcomed the advent of the market economy. Nevertheless it must be admitted that along with benefits of the market economy have come some problems. In my opinion the biggest problem is the large number of fake and shoddy goods which are found all over the country and do greart harm to society. Fake and shoddy goods are harmful on two levels. Some people think that the quickest way to make profits is by selling poor quality commodities and this undermines the nation' s economy; at the same time some fake and shoddy goods are bad for people' s health. This makes consumers distrust the sellers and the free market in general. In view of the seriousness of this problem it is essential that laws and regulations be worked out to ban the manufacturing and circulation of fake and shoddy goods. At the same time consumers should be educated to identify substandard commodities. With proper laws and an alert pubic it will only be a matter of time before fake and shoddy goods become things of the past.

3.Changes in Family Expenses The statistic figures given by this table show there are some fundamental changes in family expenses in China from 1985 to 2005. The amount of money spent on food and clothing has decreased dramatically in the past twenty years whereas that on recreation education health care and others has increased sharply. Especially expenses on recreation and education increased most. The result analyzed can be explained by three reasons. First people's living standard has improved. Money spent to keep the family from hunger and coldness is not the major concern any longer. Second people realize the importance of education. Third people spent more money on recreation and health care in order to live a happy and healthy life. The above analysis tells us that people are no longer satisfied with basic living necessities; instead they pay more attention to their spiritual life Undoubtedly this trend will continue in the future With the increase of family expenses on recreation education and health care.
