My master decided one day to visit some friends. James Howard, a stable (马厩) boy was to drive them. The first day we travelled thirty- two miles

Just as the sun was going down, we reached the town where we would spend the night. We stopped at a big hotel in the Market Place. We were taken to a long stable

In the evening, a young man with a pipe in his mouth came into the stable for a gossip (闲谈) .

"Towler, "said an ostler (马夫), "put some hay down into this horse's rack

"All right, " said the ostler. Later I heard him step across the floor overhead and put down the hay. Then James came in for a last look at us before he went to bed.

At night I woke up feeling very uncomfortable. The stable seemed full of smoke and I couldn't breathe.

Just then Dick Towler came in with a lantern and began to untie the horses. He seemed so frightened that he frightened us, too, and none of us would go with him

Next I heard James's voice, "Come on, Beauty, and he led me out of the stable to a safe place, then he went back for another.

I was joyful when James was coming through the smoke, leading Ginger out. Soon firemen arrived with a heavy fire engine and quickly put out the fire.

Next day, everyone was wondering how the fire had started. At last someone remembered that Dick Towler had been smoking a pipe when he came into the stable. Dick said that he had put his pipe down, but no one believed him. Pipes were never allowed in the stable at Birtwick Park.

You might not be familiar with the name Beverly Cleary, but perhaps you have read one of her books——
Ramona the Pest, Dear Mr Henshaw, too, she changed the world of children's books.

As a child, Cleary had trouble learning to read. Even after she had learned to love reading, she still found many books boring. The girl felt like the people she was reading about had little to do with her or her life. She wanted to read funny books about children like herself.

When she grew up, Cleary became a librarian. One day, some boys learned across the counter and asked her, Henry Huggins, tells the story of a boy and the stray dog that he takes in. Huggins is just an ordinary third- graderhit.

Cleary went on to write more books about Huggins and the other children in his neighborhood. From this neighborhood, "Ramona the Pest" became Cleary's best- known character. Ramona is curious and stubborn. She is always getting into trouble. Whenever Ramona gets into trouble, it's often funny

Unlike many other children's authors, Cleary liked to focus on real-life problems. In several of her books, the parents have money problems or are unhappy with their jobs. Cleary dealt with these situations with a gentle sense of humour and a deep understanding.

Cleary created over 40 books in all. More than 91 million copies of her books have been sold. The great author died at the age of 104 on March 25. Although she is no longer with us, her characters and stories will continue to be loved by many for years to come.

In the summer of 1978, an English man named Steven was driving his tractor through a field of wheat when he discovered something strange. Some of his wheat was lying on the ground. The flattened wheat formed a circle about six meters across. Around this circle were four smaller circles of flattened wheat.

Three years later, a farmer who lived nearby discovered almost the same circles in one of his fields. These circles were larger— nearly 15 meters across. In the Same year, another English farmer discovered three circles of flattened wheat on his land—one large circle between two small circles. During the following years

The circles are called "crop circles"because they usually appear in fields of wheat or corn. The wheat in the circles lies on the ground but is never broken; it keeps on growing, and the farmers can later harvest it. Farmers always discover the crop circles in the morning

At first, people thought that some kids were making them as a joke, or that farmers were making them to attract tourists. (In fact, in 1991, two men said they made the circles themselves, but many scientists don't believe them.), and they couldn't flatten the wheat without breaking it.

For several times, people reported seeing strange objects near the fields where crop circles later appeared. Many people believe that these crop circles are the messages sent by living things for outer space or the marks left by their spaceships.

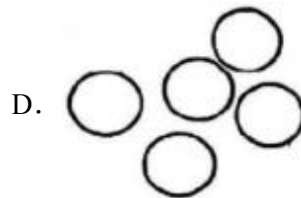

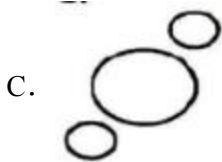

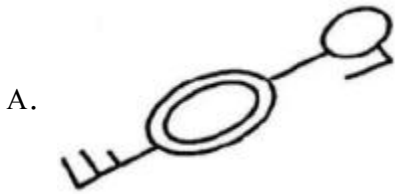

Scientists who have studied the crop circles try to find out what causes them. In the summer of 1990, some scientists spent three weeks in the part of England where many circles have appeared. They had all the latest high- tech equipment (最新高科技设备). The equipment—worth 1. 8 million dollars—got nothing. But one night, crop circles formed in the field behind them, which were quite different from the others. The scientists had neither seen nor heard anything.

When Steven discovered the crop circles on his land in 1978, he said "It was just like something that had landed in the field from the air and gone back up again. I don't know what to make of these things. "

Crop circles have appeared in England, Japan, the United States and Russia. Experts from all over the world have studied them, and they say what Steven said: we don't know what to make of these things.

34. Which picture is probably the one formed in the field behind the scientists?

35. "Flattened wheat" means ____.

A. harvested wheat

B. growing wheat

C. broken wheat

D. lying wheat

36. Which of the following sentences is NOT true according to the passage?

A. Crop circles are always discovered in the morning.

B. The crop circles maybe form at night.

C. Crop circles have appeared all over the world.

D. The wheat in the circles can keep on growing.

37. The passage is mainly about something ____ .

A. that is discovered and copied by the farmer

B. that is done by living things from outer space

C. that cannot be solved but found all around the world

D. that cannot be made clear or understood

Recently a video on Bilibili attracted widespread attention. About 1, 000 students across China talked about what they didn't want to be in the future. 41. Normally, people talk about the things they do want to do or be

Well, it turns out that most of the students are unsatisfied with the world as it currently is. There are lots of big problems. Some have easy Wildly Important Goals solutions and others don't. 42. In other words, they get tired, worn-out and give up on having any dreams or hopes of being able to make the world a better place.

When I was a teenager, my parents told me I could do anything and be whatever it is that I wanted to be. 43. However, looking back, I really appreciated their advice, plus the excellent guidance I got from several outstanding teachers in high school and my experiences as a summer camp counselor (夏令营负责人), led me to pursue a career in education. I've been looking for more ways to encourage my students to keep their dreams alive. 44. I have found that I have personally been able to achieve this in my current job as a Director of College Counseling.

But how can you achieve what it is that you want to do? According to one of my favourite books, The Four Disciplines of Execution, there are four steps. Focus on your "wildly important goals" (your "WIGs"), measure your progress, and finally check your progress. So what's your WIG? 45.

- A. This was a bit unusual.
 - B. I always encourage them to try to help make the world a better place.
 - C. Don't be afraid; think positively and dream big!
 - D. I usually laughed and thought this was a bit silly and impractical.
 - E. Most adults have become tired and bored.
