21. （6 分）Nothing is more refreshing on a warm summer day than watching someone else work.

Right now, I'm sitting on my porch and watching young Beth baling (打捆) the big field on top of the hill. She's been haying that field for over ten years. I know: I put her on the tractor when she was just twelve years old.

She picked a great day for baling. It's not too hot, and there's a nice breeze. On Monday, when she cut the field, it was so hot I thought the corn would start popping in the field. Didn't stop her, though. She just stuck that big hat on her head, wrapped a wet handkerchief around her neck, and set to work. I remember when I would have done the same thing.

While I'm here sucking a lemonade, Beth is driving the "hay (干草) train," a tractor pulling a baler and an old wagon. You'd think someone her size would never be able to see over the tractor. But somehow she manages. When she's finished, her tracks are very straight.

The whole time she's haying, that dog of hers is working just as hard, running along beside her like he's afraid she'll drive away without him. Beth sure knew what she was doing when she trained him.

The way the machine works is pure poetry. Each row is pushed into shape. When just enough hay is in a bale, it is wrapped up and fastened together. A second or so later, the bale comes flying out and into the old wagon. The person who invented that machine sure was some kind of genius.

That's not to say it works perfectly. Every once in a while a bale misses the mark, especially when you are turning the machine at the end of a row. That means, of course, that you have to go back and pick up those bales and throw them into the wagon.

I can remember when Beth's mother was her age. She looked an awful lot like Beth does now. Makes a man proud to see his daughter and granddaughter taking such good care of themselves.

Well, I suppose I should get up and fill this glass again. Not much fun sitting here with an empty glass.

1、 We can learn from the passage that at some time in the past the author _____.

2、 In the eyes of the author, the sight of Beth baling hay is _____.

- A. uncommon B. beautiful
C. unforgettable D. changeable

3、 Before thrown into the wagon, the hay must be _____.

- A. tied up B. dried up
C. cut up D. lined up

4、 Who do you think is telling this story?

- A. Beth's mother. B. Beth's father.
C. Beth's grandmother. D. Beth's grandfather.

22. (8 分) In the short time Steve and Zach had been inside their tent packing their tools, wind-blown flame had skipped from the top of one tree to another. The long dry summer had turned the forest into a tinderbox.

“Let's go! We can make it back to the river we crossed today!” Steve kept Brady on the lead and their heads down against the fire-wind. But Brady barked a sharp warning. Ahead of them lay a thick curtain of smoke across the track. They would never make it through that. The dog was pulling at his lead trying to draw them away from the smoke, and yet Steve was uneasy. It seemed to him that they were moving away from the river.

Suddenly, Zach cried. “Zach!” Steve shouted. “Are you OK? Where are you?” Then Brady pulled Steve down a sharp slope(坡). At its base, Zach was rubbing his ankle.

As Steve helped his friend to his feet, Brady lifted his head and snuffed(嗅) the smoke-laden wind. Next moment, the dog bounded away and disappeared. The boys shouted for him, but he didn't come back. Steve couldn't blame Brady for panicking. He himself wanted to run even though he didn't have a clue which way.

Steve and Zach hadn't gone far when there was a familiar bark, and Brady came bounding, stopped directly in front of Steve and hit him with his head, pushing him back toward the slope they'd just climbed. But Steve didn't get it. Then Brady grabbed the boy's jeans and started pulling. The message was clear, but Steve hesitated. Of course he remembered Brady saving his uncle's life when the dog was much younger. Was he still sharp enough to get them through this?

Nearby, a pine went up in a whoosh of smoke. Brady pulled again, urgently. “OK, big guy,” Steve gritted(咬紧牙关). Brady led them back down the slope and into the trees. Not far from them fire was touching underbrush. Several times the big dog stopped. Often he changed directions. Steve was so tired that he just wanted to rest, but Brady
