2023年专四作文真题附范文:节省花钱

Most of us, as students, are careful with our money in daily life: we collect (优惠券 kinds of 券); we look for group-buy deals if we eat out or travel; we don't buy clothes unless in a sale. However, some people think that all this may not make us smart consumers. What is your opinion?

The advantages of being careful with money in daily life

【范文】

Nowadays, there is a hot debate on whether people, including students, should be careful with their money in their daily life since they try their best to save money. Some people think it is not good to do so because this may not make people smart consumers. But in my eyes, the advantages of being careful with money in daily life outweigh the disadvantages.

First, being careful with money is a virtue that can always benefit people. Being prudent is of great help, especially when the economic status around the world is not very good and it becomes harder to earn money than before. A good habit of being careful with money will help many people through this difficult period or any other difficult financial situation in their life. People with this awareness will think carefully before deciding to buy anything. For students, this awareness is also of great help since they mainly depend on their parents for financial supports. When they keep this awareness in their mind, they will definitely avoid wasting money.

Secondly, being careful with money is in fact a good way of practicing how to manage one's money In current society it is necessary to learn something about Finance theories are usually hard to learn in contrast most people can learn quickly by practicing Being careful with money means an efficient use of money which in essence equals to part of the job of a financial planner Being careful with money can teach people to make best use of their money

It is true that being too careful with money may have some disadvantages it may cause people to ignore other aspects of commodities But overall this behavior is good and has its reality basis Money-consciousness is always needed in the market economy

The Dragon Boat Festival

The Dragon Boat Festival, also called the Duanwu Festival, is celebrated on the fifth day of the fifth month according to the Chinese calendar. This festival is to commemorate the death of an upright and honest poet and statesman who is said to have committed suicide by drowning himself.

The most important activity of this festival is the Dragon Boat races. It symbolizes people's attempt to rescue Qu Yuan. In the current period, these races also demonstrate the virtues of cooperation and teamwork.

Besides, the festival has also been marked by eating zong zi (glutinous rice). Zong zi is glutinous rice stuffed with different fillings and wrapped in bamboo or reed leaves. People who mourned the death of Qu threw Zong zi into the river to feed his ghost every year.

With the changes of the times, the memorial turns to be a time for protection from evil for the rest of year. People will hang healthy herbs on the front door to clear the bad luck. Although the significance of the festival might be different with the past, it still gives an opportunity to glimpse a part of the rich Chinese cultural heritage.

Should private car owners be taxed for pollution?

With the development of society, many people can afford a car. As the number of the cars we are facing some problems. One big problem is the pollution caused by the use of cars. To solve this problem, government agencies in some big cities recently suggest that a "pollution tax" should be put on private cars in order to control the number of cars and reduce pollution. In my part, I agree to this viewpoint, and my reasons are as follows:

To begin with, cars contribute to the environmental pollution. For example, a lot of cities in China are now plagued by serious air pollution. Then it is the responsibility of these private to pay for the pollution and they should be taxed. The purpose of collecting environmental p is to raise the fund, and then utilize the tax revenue lever to protect our environment.

Secondly, it is a good way to raise people's environmental awareness by putting a poll private cars. If people suffer from the financial loss when making a decision, they will thi their decision. Then they will consider more when deciding to buy a private car. Consequently, the increase rate of the number of the private cars can be controlled.

In a word, it is a very good and necessary attempt to use the means of taxation to treat
Of course, it must be kept in mind that all people, including the private car owners, should to protect the environment.

Should College Students Hire Cleaners?

According to a recent report, six university students hired cleaners to clean their dorms and do laundry every week. Although we have no right to tell them what to do with their money, as a student myself, I find this practice absurd.

For a start away from our parents, it is in university that we learn to be independent adults. Cleaning the room and doing one's laundry are the most basic living skills. If we always depend on others to take care of us, how can we survive when there is no one to help us? How can we take responsibility when we step into society?

For another, the practice reflects their flippant attitude towards money. The money the cleaners probably comes from their parents, who must be very depressed once they know the money also sets a very bad precedent on campus. Other students may follow suit to show the wealthy families; or worse, they tend to think money can buy them anything in this world, which is wrong.

All in all, I think we must do away with this practice. Otherwise, we may never appreciate the value of money and an independent way of life. The better and sooner we can take care of our own needs, the more proud our parents will be.

Will Tourism Bring Harm to the Environment?

In recent years, tourism has developed rapidly in China. Many people believe that tourism produces positive effects on economic growth and we should try our best to promote tourism. However, what these people fail to see is that tourism may bring about a disastrous impact on our environment. In my opinion, I'm firmly convinced that too many tourists bring harm to the environment.

The bad impact of tourism on the environment has mainly expressed itself in various ways. One way is the process of exploiting a new scenic spot. In order to attract tourists, a lot of facilities have been built, which have certain unfavorable effects on the environment. This process usually disturbs the ecological balance of the area. In some mountainous places, trees are being cut down to clear paths for others to see and explore the beauty of the mountains. Then land slides and mud-rock flows occur. Another way the development of tourism has damaged the environment occurs when tourists go to scenic spots. Some tourists don't have the awareness to protect the environment, and ignore their garbage here and there. Some people even kill the local wildlife to eat, which badly disturbs the balance of the natural environment.

It is wrong to sacrifice the environment for the growth of tourism. We must keep in mind that too much tourists bring harm to the environment. We need to find a balance between satisfying the needs of tourists and reducing to a minimum the pollution they cause.

The Benefits of Volunteering

Volunteering has grown into a fashion these years, with volunteers ranging from college students to white collar workers. It is reported now China has 4.5 million registered volunteers having provided more than 4.5 billion hours of volunteer work. Why would so many people like to do volunteer work? Are there any benefits of volunteering?

The answer is absolutely yes. First of all, through volunteering we can gain more experiences. Whatever volunteering work we do, either being a volunteer teacher for a village school or a worker in a retired house, we can taste different lifestyles and broaden our horizon.

Secondly, through volunteering we can acquire the sense of being needed. Many people feel frustrated with travail in life and empty with the cycling of working and resting. They gradually become numb, losing the sense of being needed. By joining the volunteer group and offering help voluntarily to people who need it, we may feel happy and fulfilled again.

Thirdly, through volunteering we can learn more good qualities. Volunteer work is teamwork which needs good cooperation. We can know people with different personalities and different backgrounds joining in the volunteer group and devoting to the volunteer work together. From other volunteers we can absorb many good qualities that could help us be better persons.

In conclusion, volunteering is of great benefit in that we can gain more experiences, a sense of being needed and learn more good qualities.

Is It Wise to Make Friends Online?

Is it wise to make friends online? People's views about this issue vary from one to another. Some people think that it is unwise to make friends online while others think that there is nothing wrong with online friends. In my point of view, although online friends cannot be always trusted, the benefits far outweigh the risks. The reasons are mainly as follows:

First of all, it is easy and quick to get to know people and make new friends online friends are indispensable in our daily life but they cannot stay with us wherever we go. For especially college freshmen, leaving friends and the security of home for a new place where know anyone can be overwhelming. With some online chatting tools such as and MSN, they to people they like and find people with common interests easily. In addition, online friends broaden our knowledge about different cultures and customs. Chatting with people from different places and social backgrounds is surely an effective way to understand other cultures and develop cultural communication skills. We can also practice our English in speaking and writing.

To sum up, making friends online is amazing. In the online global community we can enjoy an active social life with rewarding experience, so it is wise to make online friends.

Saving Money is a Good Habit

Recently the result of a survey conducted by a Beijing information company has shown that the majority of Chinese students think that saving money is a good habit while the rest prefer to use tomorrow's money. As is seen to me, the principle of "hard work and thrift" is still a guiding principle and I absolutely believe that we will profit more from saving money than from spending too much money.

Through saving money, we' ll be better prepared for our life. There is an old saying that "a penny saved is a penny earned". In modern society, life is so changeable that we can' t predict what will happen in the future. So we' d better get prepared for unexpected emergencies. What' s more, psychologically speaking, saving money means controlling money rather than being controlled by money, and it helps us to be freer and more independent. With the money we' ve saved, we don' t need to be too much concerned about the old age or the monthly installment that we owe to the bank.

Of course I don' t mean that we cannot loan money to buy a house or for some enjoyment. What I' m saying is that we must think twice before spending tomorrow' s money. To put it in a nutshell, I' m a great believer that saving money is a good habit.

My Idea of a University Arts Festival

University arts festival has always been a big occasion to display students' talent in art and to cultivate their artistic taste. Therefore, to make the incoming arts festival more fruitful, personally I think it should include two parts: one is to organize some art activities among students such as painting, photography, recitation or short play contests, and the other is to invite all kinds of artists to campus to stage excellent performances of ballet, orchestra or drama for our students.

As regards why university arts festival should be organized in this way, there are mainly two reasons: to develop students' artistic potential and to enhance their aesthetic ability. By participating in art contests, students not only have a golden opportunity to show their special gift for art but also undergo sort of training through preparation, rehearsal and competition. Thus those activities encourage students to get involved in art activities, which is not readily accessible to them in normal life. Through an intimate contact with real art enables students to understand art better and appreciate it properly, which will refine their artistic taste in the long run.

Since my idea of arts festival integrates training students' artistic ability with improving their aesthetic taste, I believe it will go a long way in art education, which is also the ultimate aim of university arts festival.

Will Phones Kill Letter Writing?

Telephone is said to be one of the greatest inventions of the world, which has revolutionized people's way of life. Although more and more people nowadays tend to phone more than write, many still don't believe phones will kill letter writing in people's daily communication.

People communicate for different purposes and in different ways. Letters, though traditional way, help people express their ideas in a more exact way, without the careless tongue slip of telephone conversations. More importantly, it is long held that "To see is to believe." and communication in written form is considered to be more formal than that done orally. Therefore, letters are always the preferred way of communication when it comes to formal occasions like job applications, nailing down a contract or traveling information confirmation. It is not entirely groundless to say that letters are still indispensable nowadays.

In a word, letters have their unique features to satisfy certain communication purposes and therefore will never be replaced by phones in people's daily life. It's perhaps more appropriate to say that letters and phones supplement each other instead of replacing each other.
