Susan and Annie are both from Holland. Here are their emails.

Dear Susan,

Thanks for your last email! My knees have been OK since I left hospital last week. But I feel very lonely, especially in the day. You might think many kinds of games can help me while they are boring for me. What should I do?

Yours,

Annie

Dear Annie,

① Sorry to hear you're lonely!

② I think you need someone to talk with. When you have a walk in the neighbourhood, start a conversation with others in a friendly way. And I remember you like shopping. Do you talk with the cashier(收银员) while checking out? It's common to check out quickly, so people behind us in line won't wait too long. But do you know "chat checkout" programme? It is introduced by Jumbo, our large supermarket chain(连锁超市). In some of its stores, customers can talk with cashiers for as long as they want. There is also a chat corner in the supermarket. People can have a good time talking with each other over a nice cup of coffee. The world continues to move faster and faster. Many people sometimes find themselves feeling lonely. The programme is to play a role in helping people to combat loneliness. This "chat checkout" service is so popular that Jumbo is planning to introduce it into more supermarkets. As you can see, more people in our country follow a different rule at some supermarkets: Chatting happily is more important than checking out quickly.

③ Why not have a try to chat with cashiers when you go shopping next time?

Love,

Susan

- B. 记录
- C. 减轻

- A. The world will not move much faster than today.
- B. More and more people in Holland think slower life is better.
- C. It won't be easy to find a supermarket to shop and chat in Holland.

① Our body language tells the world a lot about us. But can it change the way in which we see ourselves? The answer is Yes.

② Two scientists, Amy Cuddy and Danna Carney, who know much about body language, did a famous research.

According to the result of their research, body language can change the chemistry of our brains. Some high-power body language can make you become confident. For example, you will feel confident when you hold your head high; you will feel confident too when you put your arms out wide as if you have won a race. However, some low-power body language can make you feel unconfident, such as sitting with your arms close to the body, sitting with your legs together or walking with your head down.

③ Why do all these happen? The scientists think the reason is that body language changes the amount of something special in our brains. It's called hormone(激素). One kind of hormone can increase your confidence; another kind can increase your stress(压力). But too much stress hormone is bad for learning. It also increases the risk of health problems.

④ The result of the research is helpful for your studies. Please remember: try to use more high-power body language in your studies, and you will be confident. That is, always believe you can study well, act as if you were doing well, then you will make greater progress in real life.

71. What's the result of the research?

- A. Low-power body language can help us feel confident.
- B. Body language can change the chemistry of our brains.
- C. Some high-power body language can make us grow faster.

- A. Putting our arms out wide.
- B. Walking with our heads down.
- C. Sitting with our legs together.

73. What is Paragraph③ mainly about?

- A. The reasons of stress.
- B. The advantages of body language.
- C. Two kinds of hormone in our brains.

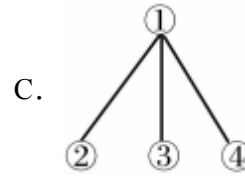

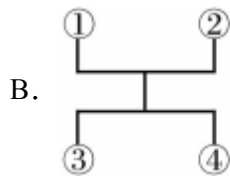

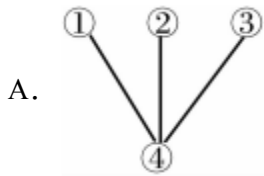

74. What can the research be used to do?

- A. Make babies smarter.

B. Improve students' studies.
